ANTIOCH WINS CLOSE GAME AT BURLINGTON

Play Fourth Game of Series With Lake Villa at Waukegan Sunday

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

Antioch won the second straight game of the season from Burlington on Sunday when they defeated the Wisconsin nine 5 to 4 after a nine-inning struggle.

A perfect "squeezo play" turned defeat into victory for Antioch. The fatal play came in the eighth inning. Burlington was leading 4 to 3 when Antioch came to bat. Rogers walked and scored when Balleyn plated a smashing triple, tying the score. Ehnart made a beautiful bunt while Balleyn slid home with the winning run.

Score by Innings:

Antioch	2	0	0	1	0	0	2	0	5
Burlington	0	0	0	3	1	0	0	1	4

Lake Villa met defeat at the hands of Glenview at the latter's park, 3 to 1, in a pitchers' battle between Eddie Stack, former Cub, pitched, and Bixby.

Both sides got seven hits, made two errors, while both pitchers struck out six men.

Lake Villa has booked the Glenview outfit for another battle to be played at the opponent's grounds on Sept. 15.

The game was the best that had been played at the Glenview diamond this year, spectators declared. Plenty of sparkling bunting by the pitching and good support by their teammates featured the game.

The score by Innings:

Antioch and Lake Villa teams will perform at Waukegan next Sunday in "W" park, formerly Electric park, in the fourth game of a series this season. Antioch has been victor in two games, while Lake Villa has copped one. Should Lake Villa win Sunday's game another game will have to be played, probably at the same park. Dawson and Kingsley are certain to start for Antioch and Bixby and Hollstein will start for Lake Villa. Preparations are being made to handle two thousand fans. The game starts at 2 o'clock standard time.

Award Contract for Hainesville-Round Lake Road

Following a long drawn out squabble between the county highway department and George R. Wade, contractor, the department on Thursday awarded a contract for the paving of the Hainesville-Round Lake road to contractor E. H. Merrick for $54,000, and State's Attorney Smith was instructed to start suit against the Massachusetts Bonding Company for $3,000 on Wade's bidder's bond.

When the contract for the work was let to Wade some time ago the bonding company, which had issued the bidder's bond, refused to issue the contractor's bond. The highway department took up the matter with the bonding company and when they failed to come to any terms the department re-advertised the work and let the contract to Mr. Merrick. When the bonding company learned that the county was going to take that action they notified the department that they would issue the bond. The department, having already made other arrangements, went through with the new contract with Merrick.

The bidder's bond is for $3,000, for which the county will bring suit.

The Merrick bid does not include cement, the county already having the cement purchased and stored.

SNOW BALL DANCE

AT SYLVAN BEACH

Saturday evening of this week there will be a snow ball dance at the Sylvan Beach pavilion at the north end of Channel Lake. The weekly special dancing parties are proving very popular with the vacation pleasure-seekers.

Firemen's Festival Will Be Held This Afternoon

All is set for the Antioch Firemen's Festival to be held this afternoon and evening. Activities will start at one o'clock on Main street with a water fight between the firemen with a 33-pound pressure hose. Other events will follow immediately, including the slow race for autos and the obstacle race for autos. A big street parade will take place at 2:15, starting at the Grade School and proceeding to the Antioch baseball park where races and games will be held. Clay pigeon shooting will also be staged.

A baseball game will be played between Lake Villa and Antioch home talent teams.

The Paintine Boy Scout band, consisting of twenty-three members, will furnish the music for the afternoon.

This band was organized by Rev. Pollock during his stay in that city. They gave a concert in Antioch last summer and displayed wonderful talent.

In the evening there will be a dance at the Antioch Sales and Service station. The music will be furnished by McCormick's orchestra.

The entire proceeds of the day will be donated to help pay for the recently purchased fire truck.

TAG DAY NETS WORKERS $200

The Woman's Club of Antioch held its annual Tag Day Saturday, Aug. 15, under the auspices of the Library and Boy Scout committee of the club. The net proceeds of the day were $200, which is to be equally divided between the library fund and the Boy Scout fund. The success of the day's work is due to the seven girls from the seventh grade, who untiringly "tagged" all day long. Also to the Boy Scouts, who took over the evening tagging, and a number of the non-resident members of the Woman's Club of Antioch who "tagged" around their homes at the lakes.

Mr. Cecchini of the Bluff Lake resort kindly took part of the work on his shoulders, taking a box and "tagging" around his vicinity. A vote of thanks is extended by the committee in charge to all who assisted.

NEW FILLING STATION IS NOW COMPLETED

The new filling station on Main and Johnson streets was completed the early part of the week and is one of the most beautiful in the county. It is white and decorated in red and blue. The street is lighted with ornamental post-lamps, and the land has been leveled and planted with lawn seed. There is a runway for autos whereby the greasing and mechanical work under the cars may be made. H. Triger is in charge of the new station.

WED AT WAUKEGAN

Saturday morning, Aug. 18, at 11 o'clock, Anna Catherine Christensen and James Lyman Thain were united in marriage at the First Baptist church at Waukegan, Ill., by the Rev. Gunster. After the ceremony the bride and groom left by automobile for a two weeks' honeymoon.

Those attending the ceremony were the bride's sister, Camilla Christensen, and her two brothers, Albert and Norman Christensen. The young couple will make their home at Millburn.

METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL AND CHURCH PICNIC

The Methodist Sunday School and church will hold their annual picnic at the Addison Fitter place on Lake Catherine Tuesday of next week. All members and friends of the church are cordially invited, including all parents and all other members of the Sunday school scholars, the families of the Cradle Roll babies, and of home department members, and all others who would like to have a good time with the folks that day. All will meet at the church and be ready to start at 10 o'clock sharp. Transportation will be provided.

HOLD COMMUNITY SALE AT PIKEVILLE CORNERS

There will be a community sale on Saturday, Aug. 25, commencing at 1 o'clock, at Pikeville Corners. There will be placed on sale cattle, horses, farm machinery, household goods, etc. Anyone may bring any article he wishes to dispose of and it will be sold to the highest bidder. L. J. Slocum is in charge of the auctioneering.

W. R. Williams was transacting business in Chicago Wednesday.

Miss Addie Shaffer left for Chicago on Monday and will spend the week gathering fall millinery styles.

David Lightner, who has been confined to the house since July 22, is able to sit up a short time each day and hopes are entertained that he will soon be able to be about.

The News office has installed a new telephone and are now connected with the Bristol Telephone company and connecting lines. We invite all subscribers to call us up if they know of any item that would be of interest, or if they have friends or relatives visiting them.

Miss Grace Judd of Kenosha is visiting with Antioch relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Grice were Kenosha visitors on Tuesday.

Mrs. Frank Powles and children of Union Grove are the guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Powles.

Mrs. Balfritow, who has been spending the summer at this place, returned to her home in St. Paul on Wednesday. She was accompanied by her niece, Miss Lula Mack.

After spending three months in Waukegan, Wis., Mr. and Mrs. Neil Nelson returned to Antioch last week.

Prof. W. L. Rankin of Carroll College, Waukesha, spent Wednesday at the home of Mrs. A. G. Watson.

Eugene Hawkins left on Tuesday for a ten days' trip to South Dakota, where he will visit with his father.

Mr. Charles Barber and wife of Elgin, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Barber.

Mrs. John Hanecock returned Thursday from Waukegan, Wis., where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. R. M. Hayes.

On Thursday afternoon of last week the resorters at Channel Lake decorated themselves and turnout with flags, bunting and flowers and made a parade through out streets to the depot to meet Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Richardson, who were to arrive on the afternoon train, they having been in Europe for some time. The parade was on the circus order. There was Uncle Sam at the head of the procession on horseback, the clown, the band wagon containing the musicians who rendered "The Good Old Summer Time," and several other selections, which was followed by the Goddess of Liberty and many carriages containing the typical circus features. Upon the arrival of the train an address of welcome was tendered and responded to by Mr. Richardson in his pleasant and agreeable way. On the return trip Mr. Richardson rode at the head of the procession in a cart bearing the inscription, "Half to the Chief." The parade was a creditable one and reflects on those who participated and had the affair in charge.

On Friday, Aug. 31st the non-resident members of the Woman's Club are planning a benefit card party at the Channel Lake Country Club to help raise funds for the Antioch library and the Boy Scouts, and a large attendance is hoped for. Tickets may be procured at Webb's Racket Store, or at the club house on the day of the card party.

To those who are not keeping in touch with the affairs of the Channel Lake Country Club, it may be of interest to know that since their opening party on June 30th, the club parties have always had a full attendance and the members and their guests have shown the keenest appreciation of the opportunities offered.

Work on the golf links is going on continuously and a beautiful course is anticipated, but as that part of the work was not ready for play this season, the club house activities have been made the chief point of interest.

Dances have been held every Saturday.

MISS M'NEIL AND JOHN MORLEY WED

Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, occurred the marriage of Miss Genevieve McNeil of Ingleside to John J. Morley, Jr., The Rev. Fr. Lynch performed the ceremony. Miss Phyllis Morley, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and Francis McNeil, brother of the bride, was the best man.

A wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home at Ingleside, after which the young couple left for a ten days' trip, and upon their return they will make their home at Clinton, Ill., where the groom has a home all prepared for the reception of his bride, after September 1.

Miss McNeil is the daughter of Mr. John McNeil of Ingleside and the groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Morley of Antioch.

Mr. Morley has charge of the athletic department of the Clinton high school.

Their many friends are extending congratulations.

Woman's Club Entertains Summer Guests at Channel Lake Club

On Thursday of last week the Antioch Woman's Club gave a most delightful luncheon and card party at the Channel Lake Country Club, the occasion being principally for the entertainment of the non-resident members from around the lake region, who number about twenty.

Mrs. Herbert Vos proved a most efficient chairman and with the gracious help of her committee, who did the serving, a most appetizing luncheon was enjoyed by each and every one. The newly appointed president, Mrs. Darby, being out of town for the summer, the club members were received on the open cement platform adjoining the club house, by the past president, Mrs. Warriner, and the new vice-president, Mrs. Hughes, and introductions and friendly greetings were exchanged.

When the summons came to enter the club house, we found fifteen beautifully set tables, seating four each, and place cards arranged so that two resident and two non-resident members were located at each table, a happy thought to promote better acquaintance.

During the lunch hour the ladies were delightfully entertained by Miss Osler of New York, who is spending the summer at Cross Lake. She gave us many pleasant interludes, songs, and two or three pantomimes and showed wonderful talent in all that she did.

After the last course had been served, Mrs. Vos introduced Mrs. Hughes, who welcomed the members in the name of the absent president, and a short outline was given of what the club was planning for the coming winter. Following Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Warriner gave a very splendid report of the work accomplished by the club during the past year, all of which was most interesting to the non-resident members who are not here to participate in any of the winter activities.

On behalf of those members Mrs. Charles W. Latkin of Channel Lake thanked the resident members and especially the officers and committee in charge, for the gracious and generous manner in which they had been entertained.

The afternoon concluded with progressive games of "bridge" and "500" and prizes were won by Mrs. Anderson (Leila Williams), Mrs. Howe, Mrs. Hardcastle, Mrs. Ernest Brook, Mrs. Osmond, and Mrs. Keulman.

HIGH SCHOOL OPENS ON SEPTEMBER 4

Registration of Pupils Will Be Held on Friday August 31

OUTLINE THE STUDIES

The high school will open on Tuesday, Sept. 4. It is expected that there will be a fair increase in the enrollment this year.

Registration day will be on Friday, August 31. All students are urged to come to the building for a few minutes that day to arrange programs. A temporary four-hole course has been opened for play and one of the best golf experts in this part of the country is on the links all the time, not only overseeing the work as it goes on, but is also giving lessons in the art of playing.

In many instances it will be advisable for parents to accompany freshmen on registration day in order that courses may be explained and a plan for the four years tentatively worked out. In case the pupil can only spend one or two years in high school changes in the regular schedule are likely advisable.

All freshmen will be required to take English, algebra and general science unless special arrangements are made. In addition to these, the boys may take either agriculture or Latin. The girls may take either cooking or Latin.

All sophomores will take English and geometry. Two additional subjects may be selected from the following list: Farm mechanics, manual training, sewing, design, Caesar

STELLAR CAST PLAYS "JAVA HEAD"

With a stellar cast seldom seen in a motion picture, George Melford's latest production, "Java Head," a picturization of Joseph Hergesheimer's celebrated novel will be given on unusually fine presentation by Manager Johnson at the Majestic theatre on next Saturday and Sunday.

"Java Head" is a photoplay of exceptional heart interest and appeal. The scenes are laid in China and in old Salem town in the late forties, and the story deals with the trials and fortunes of a young sea captain and a Chinese girl of high station, whom he marries in order to save her life at the hands of assassins. He brings his bride to his home town.

where his old sweetheart is awaiting him. His interest in his Chinese wife lapses and when the latter awakens love in the heart of an opium smoker dramatic developments ensue. The finale of the story, dramatic and tense, makes "Java Head" one of the strongest screen attractions produced in many a day.

Leatrice Joy, whose work in "Man-slaughter" won her much praise, plays the colorful role of "Tao Yen" the Chinese wife. Jacqueline Logan is seen as Nettie Vollar and Albert Roscoe plays Gerrit Amidon, the leading male role.

Raymond Hatton has the chief character role that of an opium smoker and George Fawcett has the part of Darrell Dunsack, an old sea captain.

This story by Joseph Hergesheimer has been given an authentic and elaborate background. The first scenes were taken in Salem, Mass., where the story was laid and all the sites spoken of in the novel were transformed into their 1850 style by Rudolph Byleck and his technical staff. After finishing work in Salem the company returned to the Paramount Long Island studio, where the colorful Chinese scenes were filmed.

"Well, Miss Hammond, isn't it about time?" he asked. There was weariness, dignity, even reproof in his question. "The fact of that Mexican's presence here in your house ought to prove to you the nature of the case. These vaqueros, these guerrillas, have found out you won't stand for any fighting on the part of your men. Don Carlos is a sneak, a coward, yet he's not afraid to hide in your own house. He has learned you won't let your cowboys hurt anybody. He's taking advantage of it. He'll rob, burn, and make off with you. He'll murder, too,

"Stewart, I forbid you to fight, unless in self-defense."

If it fails his way, those Greasers use knives in the dark. So I ask—isn't it about time we stop him?"

"Stewart, I forbid you to fight, unless in self-defense. I forbid you."

"What I mean to do is self-defense. Haven't I tried to explain to you that just now we'll be wild times along this stretch of border? Must I tell you again that Don Carlos is band and glove with the revolution? The rebels are crazy to stir up the United States. You are a woman of prominence, Don Carlos would make off with you. If he got you, what little matter to cross the border with you! Well, where would the hue and cry go? Through the troops along the border! To New York! To Washington! Why, it would mean what the rebels are working for—United States intervention. In other words, war!"

"Oh, surely you exaggerate!" she cried.

"Maybe so. But I'm beginning to see the Don's game. And, Miss Hammond, it's awful for me to think what you'd suffer if Don Carlos got you over the line. I know these low-caste Mexicans. I've been among the peons—the slaves."

"Stewart, don't let Don Carlos get me," replied Madeline, in sweet distress.

She saw him shake, saw his throat swell as he swallowed hard, saw the hard fierceness return to his face.

"I won't. That's why I'm going after him."

"But I forbade you to start a fight deliberately."

"Then I'll go ahead and start one without your permission!" He shook off her hand and strode forward.

"Please, don't go!" she called, beseechingly. But he kept on. "Stewart!"

She ran ahead of him, intercepted him, faced him with her back against the door. He swept out a long arm as if to brush her aside. But it wavered and fell. Haggard, troubled, with working face, he stood before her.

"It's for your sake," he exulted. "Let me out, Miss Hammond. I'm going to take the boys and go after those guerrillas."

"No!"

"Good Heavens!" exclaimed Stewart. "Why not let me go? It's the thing to do. I'm sorry to distress you and your guests. Why not put an end to Don Carlos' badgering? Is it because you're afraid a rumpus will spoil your friends' visit?"

"It isn't—not this time."

"Then it's the idea of a little shooting at those Greasers?"

"No."

"Well, then, why keep me from doing what I know is best?"

"Stewart, I—I—" she faltered, in growing agitation. "I'm frightened—confused. All this is too—too much for me. I'm not a coward. If you have to fight you'll see I'm not a coward. But your way seems so reckless—that half is an dark—the guerrillas would shoot from behind doors. You're so wild, so daring, you'd rush right into peril. Is that necessary? I think—I mean—I don't know just why I feel so—so about you doing it. But I believe it's because I'm afraid you might be hurt."

"You're afraid I—I might be hurt?" he echoed, wonderingly, the hard whiteness of his face warming, flushing, glowing.

"Yes."

The single word, with all its might, with all it might not mean, softened him as if by magic, made him gentle, amazed, shy as a boy, stifling under a torrent of emotions.

Madeline thought she had persuaded him—worked her will with him. Then another of his startlingly sudden moves told her that she had reckoned too quickly. This move was to put her firmly aside so he could pass; and Madeline, seeing he would not hesitate to lift her out of the way, surrendered the door. He turned on the threshold. His face was still working, but the flame-pointed gleam of his eyes indicated the return of that cowboy ruthlessness.

"I'm going to drive Don Carlos and his gang out of the house," declared Stewart. "I think I may promise you to do it without a fight. But if it takes a fight, off he goes!"

CHAPTER XIV

The Mountain Trail.

As Stewart departed from one door

Florence knocked upon another; and Madeline, far shaken out of her usual serenity, admitted the cool western girl with more than gladness. Just to have her near helped Madeline to get back her balance. She was conscious of Florence's sharp scrutiny, then of a sweet, deliberate change of manner. Florence might have been burning with curiosity to know more about the bandits hidden in the house, the plans of the cowboys, the reason for Madeline's suppressed emotion; but instead of asking Madeline questions she introduced the important subject of what to take on the camping trip. For an hour they discussed the need of this and that article, selected those things most useful, and then packed them in Madeline's duffle-bags.

That done, they decided to lie down, fully dressed as they were in riding-costume, and sleep, or at least rest, the little remaining time left before the call to saddle. Madeline turned out the light and, peering through her window, saw dark forms standing sentinel-like in the gloom. When she lay down she heard soft steps on the path. This fidelity to her swelled her heart, while the need of it preened that fearful something which, since Stewart's passionate appeal to her, haunted her as inevitable.

Madeline did not expect to sleep, yet she did sleep, and it seemed to have been only a moment until Florence called her. She followed Florence outside. She could discern saddled horses held by cowboys. There was an air of hurry and mystery about the departure. Helen, who came tiptoeing out with Madeline's other guests, whispered that it was like an escape. She was delighted. The others were amused. To Madeline it was indeed an escape. She heard low voices, the clumping of bits and thumping of hoofs, and she recognized Stewart when he led up Majesty for her to mount. Then came a patter of soft feet and the whining of dogs. Cold noses touched her hands, and she saw the long, gray, slaty shapes of her pack of Russian wolf-hounds. That Stewart meant to let them go with her was indicative of how he studied her pleasure. She loved to be out with the hounds and her horse.

Stewart led Majesty out into the darkness past a line of mounted horses.

"Guess we're ready," he said. "I'll make the count." He went back along the line, and on the return Madeline heard him say several times, "Now, everybody ride close to the horse in front, and keep quiet, till daylight." Then the snorting and pounding of his great black horse in front of her told Madeline that Stewart had mounted.

"All right, we're off," he called. Madeline lifted Majesty's bridle and let the ron go. The trail led in a roundabout way through shrubby gulches full of stone and brush washed down by floods. At every turn now Madeline expected to come upon water and the waiting pack-train. But time passed, and miles of climbing, and no water or horses were met. Expectation in Madeline gave place to desire; she was hungry.

Stewart kept on. It was eight o'clock by Madeline's watch when, upon turning into a wide hollow, she saw horses grazing on sparse grass, a great pile of canvas-covered bundles, and a fire round which cowboys and two Mexican women were busy.

Madeline sat her horse and reviewed her followers as they rode up single file. Her guests were in merry mood, and they all talked at once.

"Breakfast—and rustle," called out Stewart, without ceremony.

For that matter, Madeline observed Helen did not show any marked contrast to the others. The hurry order did not interfere with the men being somewhat in the nature of a plena.

As soon as the pack-train was in readiness, Stewart started it off in the lead to break trail. A heavy growth of shrub interspersed with rock and cactus covered the slopes; and now all the trail appeared to be uphill. The pack-train forged ahead, and the trailing couples grew farther apart. At noon they got out of the foothills to face the real ascent of the mountains.

Stewart waited for Madeline, and as she came up he said: "We're going to have a storm. Shall I call a halt and make camp?"

"Hero! Oh no! What do you think best?"

"Well, if we have a good healthy thunderstorm it will be something new for your friends. I think we'd be wise to keep on the go. There's no place to make a good camp. If it rains, let it rain. The pack outfit is well covered. We will have to get wet."

"Surely," replied Madeline; and she smiled at his inference. She knew that a storm was in that country, and her guests had yet to experience one.

"If it rains, let it rain."

Stewart rode on, and Madeline followed. The way led in a winding course through a matted, storm-wracked forest of stunted trees. Even up to this elevation the desert reached with its gaunt hand. The clouds overspreading the sky, hiding the sun, made a welcome change. The pack-train rested, and Stewart and Madeline waited for the party to come up.

Here he briefly explained to her that Don Carlos and his bandits had left the ranch some time in the night. The air grew oppressive; the horses panted. "Sure it'll be a hummer," said Stewart. "The first storm almost always is bad. I can feel it in the air."

The air, indeed, seemed to be charged with a heavy force that was waiting to be liberated.

One by one the couples mounted to the cedar forest, and the female contingent declaimed eloquently for rest. But there was to be no permanent rest until night and then that depended upon reaching the crags. The pack-train wagged onward, and Stewart fell in behind. The storm gathered slowly around the peaks; low rumble and bowl of thunder in

Suddenly, as the ground quaked under her horse's feet, and all the sky grew black and crisscrossed by flaming streaks, and between thunderous reports there was a strange hollow roar sweeping down upon her, realized how small was her knowledge and experience of the mighty forces of nature.

With blacker gloom and deafening roar came the torrent of rain. It was a cloud-burst. It was like solid water tumbling down. For long Madeline and her horse, head bent to the pelting rain. When its force lessened and she heard Stewart call for all to follow, she looked up to see that he was starting once more. She turned her horse into his trail.

Rain fell steadily. The fury of the storm, however, had passed, and the roll of thunder diminished in volume.

The air had wonderfully cleared and was growing cool. Madeline began to feel uncomfortable cold and wet. Stewart was climbing faster than formerly, and she noted that Monty kept at her heels, pressing her on. Time had been lost, and the camp-site was a long way off.

The steghounds began to lag and get fatigued. The sharp rocks of the trail were cruel to their feet. Then, as Madeline began to tire, she noticed less and less around her. Her horse climbed and climbed, and brush and sharp corners of stone everlasting pulled and tore at her wet garments.

A gray gloom settled down around her. Night was approaching.

Stewart's horse was on a jog-trot now, and Madeline left the trail more to Majesty than to her own chasing.

As black night began to envelop her surroundings, she marked that the fir trees had given place to pine forest. Suddenly a pin-point of light pierced the ebony blackness. It grew larger. Black tree-trunks crossed her line of vision. The light was a fire. She heard a cowboy song and the wild chorus of a pack of coyotes. Stewart's tall figure, with sombrero slouched down, was now and then outlined against a growing circle of light. And by the aid of that light she saw him turn every moment or so to look back, probably to assure himself that she was close behind.

With a prospect of fire and warmth, and food and rest, Madeline's enthusiasm revived. What a climb! There was promise to this wild ride and lonely trail and hidden craggy height, not only in the adventure her friends yearned for, but in some nameless joy and spirit for herself.

Stewart reached the summit of the ridge and was rounding the side of a great bare ridge that had hidden the crags. The last burro of the pack-train plodded over the ridge out of Madeline's sight. She looked backward down the slope, amused to see her guests change weary from side to side in their saddles. Far below lay the cedar flat and the foothills. Far to the west the sky was still clear, with shafts of sunlight shooting down from behind the encroaching clouds.

Stewart reached the summit of the ridge and, though only a few rods ahead, he waved to her, sweeping his hand round to what he saw beyond. It was an impressive gesture, and Madeline, never having climbed as high as this, anticipated much.

Majesty surmounted the last few steps and, snorting, halted beside Stewart's black. To Madeline the scene was as if the world had changed. The ridge was a mountain-top. It dropped before her into a black, stone-ridden, shrub-patched, many-canyoned gully. Massed ink clouds were piling across the peaks, obscuring the highest ones. A fork of white lightning flashed, and, like the booming of an avalanche, thunder followed.

Madeline glanced at Stewart. He had forgotten her presence. Immovable as stone, he sat his horse, dark-faced, dark-eyed, and, like an Indian unconscious of thought, he watched and watched.

To see him thus, to divine the strange affinity between the soul of this man, become primitive, and the savage environment that had developed him, were powerful helps to Madeline Hammond in her strange desire to understand his nature.

A crackling of iron-shod hoofs behind her broke the spell. Monty had reached the summit.

"Gee, what it won't all be doin' in a minute Moses himself couldn't tell," observed Monty.

Then Dorothy climbed to his side and looked.

"Oh, isn't it just perfectly lovely!" she exclaimed. "But I wish it wouldn't storm. We'll all get wet."

Once more Stewart faced the ascent, keeping to the slow heaves of the ridge as it rose southward toward the looming spires of rock. Soon he was off smooth ground, and Madeline, some rods behind him, looked back with concern at her friends. Here the real toll, the real climb began, and a mountain storm was about to burst in all its fury.

The sky grew blacker; the slow-gathering clouds appeared to be suddenly agitated; they piled and rolled and mushroomed and obscured the crags. The air moved heavily and seemed to be laden with sulphurous smoke, and sharp lightning flashes began to play. A distant roar of wind could be heard between the peaks of thunder.

Stewart waited for Madeline under the lee of a shelving cliff, where the cowboys had halted the pack-train. Majesty was sensitive to the flashes of lightning. Madeline patted his neck and softly called to him. The weary burros nodded; the Mexican women covered their heads with their mantles. Stewart untied the slicker of the back of Madeline's saddle and helped her on with it. Then he put on his own. The other cowboys followed suit. Presently Madeline saw Monty and Dorothy rounding the cliff, and hoped the others would come soon.

A blue-white, knotted rope of lightning began down out of the clouds, and instantly a thunder-clap crashed, seeming to shake the foundations of the earth. This moment of the breaking of the storm, with the strange growling roar of wind, like a moaning monster, was pregnant with a heart-disturbing emotion for Madeline Hammond. Glorious it was to be free, healthy, out in the open, under the shadow of the mountain and cloud, in the teeth of the wind and rain and storm to be liberated.

Suddenly, as the ground quaked under her horse's feet, and all the sky grew black and crisscrossed by flaming streaks, and between thunderous reports there was a strange hollow roar sweeping down upon her, realized how small was her knowledge and experience of the mighty forces of nature.

With blacker gloom and deafening roar came the torrent of rain. It was a cloud-burst. It was like solid water tumbling down. For long Madeline and her horse, head bent to the pelting rain. VERY few persons in America live in the same city or town in which their parents or grandparents lived. Unlike the Europeans who are rooted to their soil we are a nomadic people.

But we think with fondness of our parents and our old homes, and as often as we can, we jump on the train or crank up the "flier" and go home for a visit. This is as it should be.

But there is no need of being out of touch with the home folks in the long intervals. The Bell wires reach your home town. There is a telephone in the old home. Nearly everybody has one nowadays. Mr. and Mrs. Cook of the E. J. Lehman farm entertained friends from the city on Sunday.

Marie Nadr has resigned her position at the telephone office and Frances Tweed is now our hello girl early in the morning and in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tweed drove to Elburn, Ill., on Sunday and spent the day with friends there.

Mr. and Mrs. Cannon and Mr. and Mrs. Kean made a business trip to Burlington last Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Corson and Junior started Saturday on a camping trip to points in Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Minzur and Mr. and Mrs. Al Boehm and Katherine are enjoying a vacation camping trip at Planets, Wls., on St. Louis Lake and are enjoying it immensely.

Mrs. Leo Barnstable spent last Friday with Waukegan friends.

The Sunday school picnic last week Wednesday was well-attended and those who went said they had a most enjoyable time. Mr. and Mrs. Kean were splendid entertainers and kept something going all the time. All took part in all sorts of games and races and a ball game between the women and the boys was an enjoyable feature. All enjoyed the dinner, especially the ice cream donated by Mr. Hooper, who deserves a vote of thanks. Mr. Hussey and Mr. Rhodes were very kind to use their trucks to take the children to and from the grounds and we also want to thank Mr. Dering for the use of the grounds.

Nita Potter of Hubbard Woods is spending a few weeks with her grandparents here.

A Ford and an Overland collided near Sheehan's on Sunday and both were so badly smashed as to be hardly worth fixing, but no one was seriously injured. One driver lost control of his car and ran into the other.

James Kerr and Geo Mitchell drove to Tipler, Wls., last Saturday and Mr. Kerr will stay this week and Mr. Mitchell remains two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kerr.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm Walker, Sr., left this week for Portland, Ore., to spend a couple of months with their son George Walker, also to see the Daniels family there. They entertained several friends at their home on Sunday afternoon.

Axel Norien is enjoying a fishing trip in Northern Wisconsin. Neil Steffenberg is caring for the garage during his absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Wegner entertained Dr. Holt, their pastor in Chicago, with his wife, at their home at Sand lake over the weekend.

Mrs. Geo. Mitchell and Helen Ann and Mrs. Harriet Mitchell of Chicago are spending a couple of weeks at the James Kerr home.

Mrs. Ruby Anderson is staying with her mother, Mrs. Leonard, this week.

Mrs. Joe Eberle of Chicago was with her mother, Mrs. Leonard, several days recently. Mrs. Leonard is improving nicely from her recent fall when she broke her right arm, one finger on her left hand and bruised herself a great deal.

Mrs. Kean was in Chicago on business last Friday.

While Ben Hamlin was working with a buzz saw run by motor in his shop last week Wednesday he cut his left hand so badly as to require four stitches, so he is taking a vacation at home, but doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. James Atwell went to Racine last Wednesday for a few days visit with the family of Will Atwell, and from there went to Waukegan to see Mrs. Atwell's sister, Mrs. O'leary.

The Royal Neighbors had a vacation last week and held no meeting, but on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 28th, the regular meeting will be held and it promises to be interesting. All Neighbors please plan to be there.

Of Interest to Antioch Farmers

Timely topics and local news concerning stockmen, poultrymen, gardeners and dairymen. Edited by C. L. KUTIL

"GLAD TO MEET YOU."

This space will be devoted to articles on modern farming and agricultural news of local interest. Mr. C. L. Kutil, Smith-Hughes Instructor in agriculture at the Antioch Township High School, is to take charge of this column, and perhaps write a good many of the articles himself. Advice will be given to anyone for the asking. Call for Mr. Kutil at the high school, at his home, or write him. He will willingly consider your farm problems with you and help in any way possible.

BIDDY NEEDS A HOME

The first poultry house was a limb of a tall tree somewhere in Indiana. The hen of those days laid from one to two dozen eggs in the spring and then took a vacation that ended the following spring. Their Illinois sitters roosting in trees can easily duplicate records of "Biddy from Indiana." Hens that roost on Ford automobiles and binder reels will do little better, but to make a long story short, the present day farmer is no longer satisfied with the performance of hens under such conditions and he is trying to properly house his flock for the comfortable hen pays even better for her care than the dairy cow.

The first poultry houses in the Middle West were of logs with straw roofs. These were fairly good until the straw became infested with lice and mites. This again drove the hens to the trees as soon as it became warm enough.

The log house was followed by a building with a gable roof and with but a few small windows. It was dark, dirty and damp in them and after the hens laid a few eggs they usually froze their combs and refused to lay until spring.

To overcome the dampness and darkness, poultry men began building houses that were well ventilated and admitted plenty of light. Dryness is more important than warmth for egg production. Drafts must be avoided in poultry houses. A shed roof building 16 to 20 feet wide, 5 feet high in the rear and 9 feet in the front by 30 feet long will house a farm flock of 100 pullets and 50 to 75 hens. Such a flock can be made to pay in this locality.

A concrete floor underlaid with shingles or at least 6 inches of gravel will provide a dry floor. Some place a thickness of tar paper under the concrete to prevent water from rising and dampening the floor.

Ventilating windows can be made by placing shingles over the opening or using hoppers. These admit fresh dry air at all times and prevent drafts.

Under the roost should be a droppings board. Many diseases are spread by mixing the scratch feed with the droppings. Place the salt feeder, water pan and grit and oyster shell boxes about a foot from the floor to insure sanitation. Always feed the scratch feed in a deep litter of clean straw on the floor.

The Chicago market reports eggs as steady. The Antioch local demand is excellent. Consider giving biddy some real comfort. It is not too early to build her home now.

Why Send Your Boy to School? Somebody is going to farm these Antioch farms in the next generation and the best trained farmer will win out. Train your boy to be a leader in this community. You want him to be a leader,—there is plenty of room for leadership on the farm. You want your boy to have financial success. Remember that other business hasn't been all profit. More young men fail the cities than in the country. And above all remember that the "man who knows" gets the results in farming as well as in all other occupations.
